MISS GERTRUDE COGHLAN. A stage Becky Sharp, impersonated by Miss Gertrude Coghlan, will be seen at the opera house conight, matinee tomorrow and emerrow night.

All the elements of popularity are concen-trated in the play of "Vanity Fair," which a to be seen here by the splendid comcompany which is headed by Miss Gortrule Coghlan, the talented daughter of Charles Coghlan. There is an elopement story of exceptional meril, four or five quaint love stories are running throughout the action of the pily, and there are numerous other features which arouse and hold the heart interest. The dramatication was most expectly performed by J. H. Nevins and as depicted on the stage by the company supporting Miss Coghlan, it forms one of the completest and most enjoyable productions stem on the American stage in a number of years. But it is not only heart interest and love snapense which makes "Vanity Fair" a great play. Throughout the action, led by the yellattle, impulsive, yet scheming, Becky Sharp, are the most delightful veins of conseily and satiry, the bright, crisp sayings of Thackersy, surrounded by pictures and groupings which make them all the more forceful and effective. guny which is headed by Miss Gertrude
